

collections, reading lists, films, film lists, recordings and various other devices that are useful in supplementing the services and promoting the program as a whole. Helping groups and individuals in planning programs is another effective service of the library. An effort is made to have available many kinds of materials and suggestions for programs conducted by clubs, churches, schools and other organizations.

Notable persons from various fields have lectured at the library from time to time. Found in this group of speakers are Frederick Koch, Zora Neale Hurston, Arna Bontemps, John Hope Franklin, Langston Hughes, William E. Burghardt DuBois, Ellen Tarry, J. Saunders Redding, Charlemae Rollins, and Peter Abrahams. Each of these persons has made significant contributions to the literary field. Several local citizens have participated as resource people in programs at the library on many occasions.

In order to fulfill the needs of the community, to encourage cultural development, to make the citizens aware of their many responsibilities, the library is trying to make available a wide variety of services and materials.
